“A Tribute to the Lumières of Paris ”

There is a special kind of wonder that can only be found walking the streets of Paris at night, the sound of steps reverberating in the quiet hush of a city that doesn't really sleep. It's the beauty of knowledge and art surrounding the senses, the inebriating flavor of the cuisine, the soft lights reflecting on the marble of the statues scattered around the city, the magnificent vision of the Louvre with the treasures hidden from the eyes. Paris is more than a city, it's its own world, and to know it is to know the meaning of beauty, of elegance, for some even love. For decades artists have taken inspiration from Paris, drawn it into their own art and shared it around the world – it is not surprising then that entire districts and even cities have been built with French inspiration, in the way buildings, lights and shops surround tourists and passers-by.

French Quarter is a beautiful stone with an elegant touch to it, inspired by the look of the Ville Lumière in the heart of Paris. Subtle in its own peculiarity, presents a soft graphic that gives every room an elegant touch that recalls the splendor of the villas of the past nobles.
