WHITE MATCHING

“ Opposite Textures Colliding into One ”

There is a special kind of magic when witnessing the meeting of two that combine into one. Nature has provided us with countless of examples of different elements that meet in the middle, their beauty mixing together to create something new and different, something even more beautiful than the separate elements by themselves. Like the water of the sea that meets the shore, the line of the horizon that bonds the sky and the earth, the multitude of different species that came to life in such surprising ways that seem impossible to even believe. When it's the right combination of things, it creates an equilibrium that captures the eyes, impossible to ignore. An encounter of fate. After all, what is beauty, if not the harmony of details combining together to elicit a new feeling? It becomes even more stunning when it’s an encounter of different textures, of smooth lines and sharp edges, meeting in the middle to create a new and surprising balance, unimaginable until that very moment. The new creation of feeling becomes art in itself, and art is made of ideas coming to life, meeting and melting together to create something new, something missing in the world that is only waiting to be found. Rather than causing a disruption, new creations enrich our world, giving new possibilities to make everything more beautiful. Breccia is a beautiful stone made of a fusion of sharpness and softness, of subtle contrasts that easily flow from one end to the other, creating a seamless look that is tender to the eye. The soft look of it is in the details of the surface, showcased by the neutral colors and the finishes that are the perfect companions to the beautiful mix of textures, creating a shadowed look that is both stunning and easy to match with other materials and decorations, never to over intrude. A stone that wants to adapt and merge with the look of any room, Breccia is all about creating a new fantasy.
